A setback for Oli, as his aide is replaced by Congress leader in Gandaki

Nepali Congress' Krishna Chandra Nepali takes over chief minister after Prithvi Subba Gurung lost confidence vote.

TIKA R PRADHAN
KATHMANDU, JUNE 12

The government leadership in Gandaki Province was changed on Saturday in what comes as a major setback for Prime Minister and CPN-UML chair KP Sharma Oli from outside Kathmandu.

Nepali Congress' Krishna Chandra Nepali Pokhrel on Saturday replaced Prithvi Subba Gurung, a close aide to Oli, in Gandaki, a day after the latter lost a vote of confidence in the Provincial Assembly.

Following in his master's footsteps, Gurung too had made attempts to create a situation for the dissolution of the Provincial Assembly after losing the vote of confidence, but the Congress managed to secure enough votes to prove a majority to lay claim to the government.

Nepali was backed by 15 members from his party, 11 from the Communist Party of Nepal (Maoist Centre), two from Rastriya Janamorchha, two from Janata Samabadi Party and the independent member Indu Gurung.

In the 60 member assembly, Nepali needed the support of 31 members to become chief minister.

Nepali was administered the oath of office on Saturday itself.

After the 2017 elections, which the

UML and the Maoist Centre had fought by forging an alliance, six of the seven provinces had governments led by the Nepal Communist Party (NCP), which was formed after a merger between the UML and the Maoist Centre in May 2018.

But the Supreme Court decision on March 7 to invalidate the Nepal Communist Party (NCP) and revive the UML and the Maoist Centre created quite some ripples in the provinces.
